YOU STOLE MY HEART... DO I HAVE TO TAKE YOUR NAME?

Sarah Pasfield-Neofitou

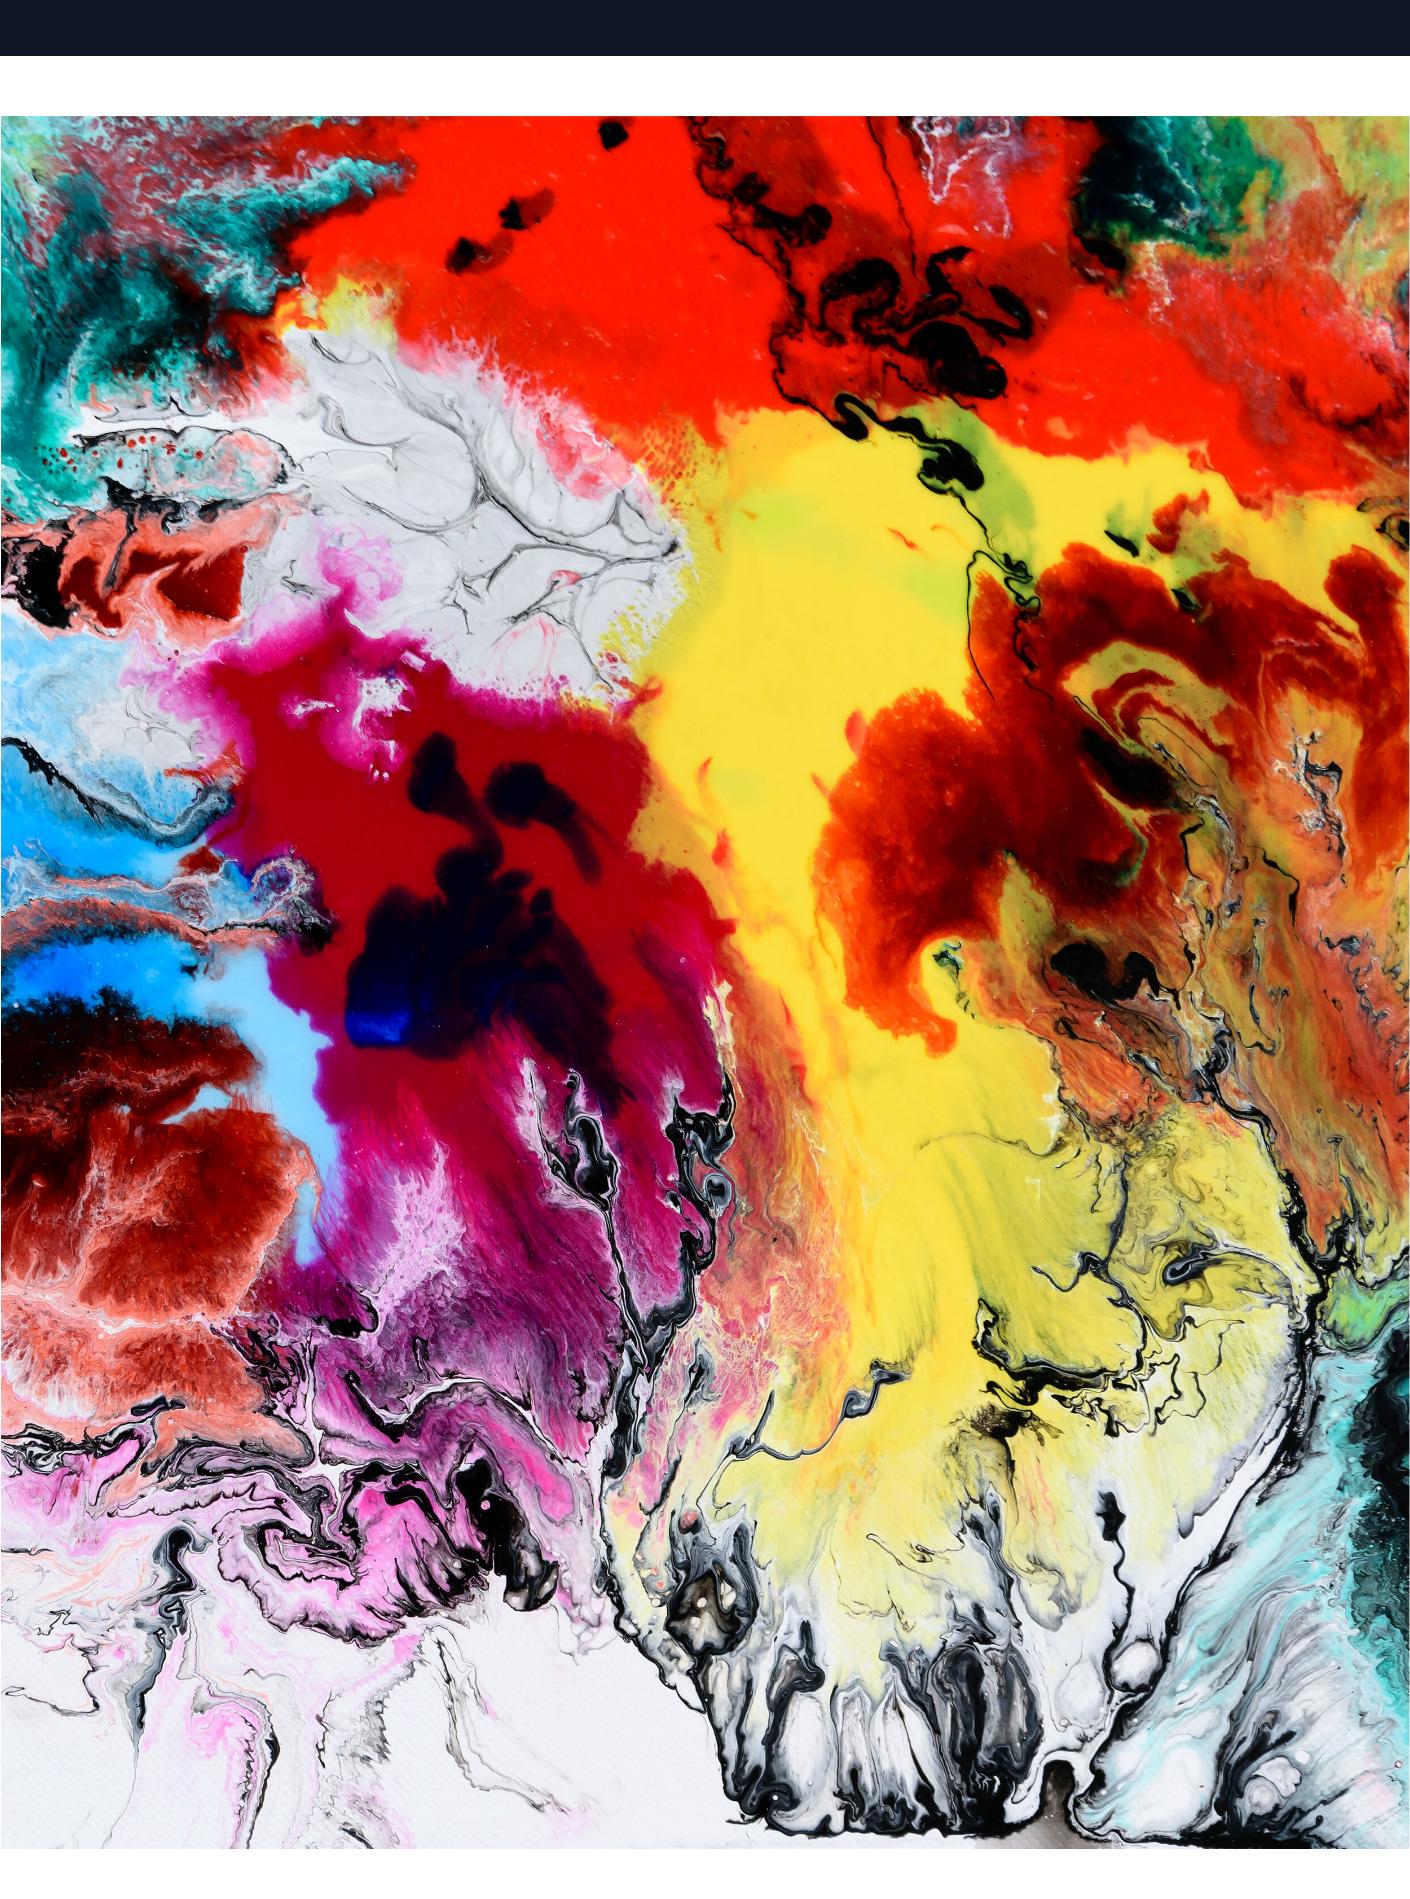

Name changes are yet another decision when it comes wedding planning – and one which can cause couples considerable friction and heartache.

You Stole My Heart... Do I Have to Take Your Name? will help you decide on a name you're happy with – and show you how to communicate your preference to your partner, family, friends, and colleagues.

But this book is much more than a how-to guide. It is a meditation upon the traditions of surnames and marriage, designed to both give engaged couples all of the insight you need to feel confident in your decision, and to help marriage celebrants, MCs, wedding suppliers, and everyone who has to attend a wedding, navigate this often prickly topic. In short, You Stole My Heart... Do I Have to Take Your Name? is a book for everyone interested in relationships and names.

Names are important. They tell those around us who we are, and where we came from. To some extent, our names can even influence where we're going. Studies show our names affect our job prospects, our chances of fame, or success in business.

She was captivated by the written word at the age of seven, when she read her first Magic Tree House book, and has ventured to countless far off places since. She loves to travel and explore new cultures. I'm Kara. I live in the Netherlands with my husband, two children and a cat, and teach English in Secondary school.

Fantasy is my first love. It started, age thirteen, when my mother gave me Lord of the Rings. Then, I began travelling to Amsterdam to discover books by a wide variety of fantasy authors. Amongst my first books were the Deverry series by Katherine Kerr. This is where my wish to become an author took fruition.

Sadly, it remained a wish until 2018 when a friend got me to participate in NaNoWriMo. I had nothing to lose, so I grabbed my laptop, dusted off an ancient prophecy I'd come up with in my teens, and started writing for thirty long days, accompanied by coffee, cookies, chocolate and music.

It was shortly after this I realised my wish had become a plan.

As an active nerd, I enjoy too many hobbies, archery, shower-singing, gaming, and caring for an army of cats included. I've been an introvert from birth, so most of my hobbies are solitary.

I specialize in sarcasm, and since I typically have a flat affect and an expressionless face, it slips past people. A lot. Yet to me, it always feels like a drunken pirate has fallen out of my mouth, only to go cursing and bumbling about.

When I write though, words come easily. So, in a world constantly trying to numb us, I aim to write stories that make people feel something.

Hi, I'm Nicola, a 28-year-old, selfpublished author. The first novel of my Wiccan Romances series, Book 1, Amelia's Story is now available for purchase and I am working hard on books 2 and 3:)

Writing has been calling to me for years and I have often worked on stories in my spare time since school. The initial premise for my current series came to me as an idea when I was supposed to be writing a History coursework during a snow week. However, I initially followed another career path and went to study Law at the University of Huddersfield, having watched Legally Blonde as a kid and deciding to be like Elle Woods. Before deciding to pursue writing full time I worked in a couple of different law firms as a paralegal or an assistant and worked as a fraud analyst at a bank.

Life began in Michigan, with five other siblings. My parents instilled in me the importance of God, family and education. When I lost my brother at twelve, my parents, younger brother and I moved to Vegas. There, I learnt new cultures and variations of life. I filled my days reading and writing and won creative writing awards. Shortly after returning to Michigan, I got viral meningitis. At age 17, the hospital believed with treatment it would be gone in a week, but it didn't. The illness progressed into Encephalitis causing swelling and a scar on my brain. This caused me to become epileptic, have a mood disorder, short-term memory loss and slurred speech. Doctor's said I would never be normal again. But, with my family and God's help, I beat the odds. I graduated, got an Associate of Arts degree and have shelves of read books. But, best of all I wrote a book. Through all of my trials I climbed those mountains and jumped those hurdles and you can too.
